BERTRAND W. SINCLAIR'S
BIG, BRACING ROMANCE OF THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST

"A tale of the Canadian wilds where strength and endurance are life's requirements, where man battles against nature and nature generously repays by teaching him and providing for him. Mr. Sinclair's two characters are exceptionally well-drawn and sympathetic. His style is robust and vigorous. His pictures of Canadian life are stimulating."

*A new book by
The Author of "The Promised Land"*

They Who Knock at Our Gates

BY

MARY ANTIN

A powerful presentation of the immigration problem by the author of "The Promised Land." In slightly condensed form these papers were published in The American Magazine. The strength of their effect may be measured by the following taken from a letter written Miss Antin by one of the editors.

"These articles will make history. To find their equal you have to turn back to the half-century following the American Revolution, when men cared passionately for the Rights of Man and when they wrote with romantic fervor of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity.

"You, Mary Antin, with your strange mixture of old-fashioned brooding and Yankee hustle, show us the faith of our fathers, to which we give cold lip-loyalty, and show it to us fresh, strong, mighty to save as it was in the first days of the Republic."

Mary Antin knows what it is to be an immigrant, poor, oppressed and ignorant. She has come up by her own efforts, helped by our free schools and libraries. What she has done she believes other immigrants can do, and she believes, furthermore, that the immigrants may be as great an advantage to America as America may be to the immigrant. She illustrates her argument by numerous anecdotes, personal and otherwise, presenting her characteristic view with unique imagination and fervor.

THE LAST SHOT

The Great War Novel of the Great War Correspondent

FREDERICK PALMER

Just See How the Papers Praise It:

"It carries a wonderful thrill, for into its chapters of battle Mr. Palmer has written vividly the details gathered during his own repeated experiences as a correspondent at the front."

"War as he knows it is what the author seeks to paint; war as it is, not as it was or ought be. . . . The portions in which he tells of the fighting between the two armies are red with realism. . . . Mr. Palmer's theme is a big one, and his descriptions of modern warfare in its various phases are vivid."

—New York Times.

"A picture of war as it is fought today in the *n*th degree of its modern organization and methods. . . . It is not necessary to recommend this book; it is sure to be read widely and more widely as discussion of it spreads."

MR. PUTNAM'S Memories include a record of sojourns in England in 1844, in 1851, and in 1860; experiences as a student in the University of Paris, in Berlin, and in Göttin-gen; and a record of service during the strenuous years of the Civil War, extending from September, 1862, to September, 1865. This service covered campaigns in Louisiana (including the Red River Expedition and work in the completing of Colonel Bailey's Dam), the campaign with Sheridan in the Valley of the Shenandoah, the decisive action at Cedar Creek. The volume includes also a record of experiences in Libby and Danville prisons during the last year of the War. A supplementary chapter gives a brief account of service in maintaining order in Savannah, after the close of the War but before the re-establishment of civil government.

A Record of Pioneer Work among the Canadian Alps

By Howard Palmer, F. R. G. S.

$5.00. Over 200 illustrations and maps. 8°

A volume of inestimable value to scientists and those interested in mountain climbing, and a boon to the layman who enjoys a popular account of discovery or adventure. The place of this book is important among the authoritative accounts of exploration.

The Essence of Astronomy

Science

Things Everyone Should Know About the Sun, Moon and Stars

By Edward W. Price

$1.00. Illustrated. 16°

A volume quite different from the usual book on astronomy. The author has epitomized the facts, figures, and theories of astronomy in such a way that the reader is given, in small compass and untechnical language, the answers to the every-day questions of the every-day public. Also, while in every sense readable and interesting, the material is so arranged as to make it readily available for quick reference.

Sun Lore of All Ages

A Book to Make You Think!THE EDUCATION OF

and edited by H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

The first edition in English of the remarkable story of the early training of the German boy who at fourteen took his degree of Ph.D., and at sixteen was made a Doctor of Laws and appointed to the teaching staff of the University of Berlin. An important book for parents and educators. 8vo. $1.50 net. By mail, $1.65.

Dr. Boris Sidis says:

"Interesting both from an educational and historical standpoint. I sincerely hope that the book will be in the hands of every intelligent father and mother who is desirous of bringing out the best in their sons and daughters; of making available to the human race the inner, potential, subconscious energies of man."

Judge Ben B. Lindsay says:

"I do not know of any book on education that has yet appeared that interests me more, or that ought to be of more interest to every parent and teacher. I am profoundly convinced that there has been something radically wrong in our understanding of the development of the child mind. I am certain that its marvelous possibilities are poorly appreciated and have never had a fair chance. It is the heritage and right of the child to have parents and teachers who know how to enable him to make the best use of his God-given faculties. We are under lasting obligations to Mr. Bruce and Professor Wiener for bringing the marvelous account of the education of Karl Witte to the attention of the American people."

CURRENT PROGRESS IN COPYRIGHT LEGISLATION.

THE review of Prof. Ernst Röthlisberger's recent important volumes on copyright, which we print elsewhere, from the pen of Mr. Carl L. Jellinghaus, who assisted the author in the preparation of "Bowker on Copyright," supplements usefully the conspectus given in that work by indicating the laws and schedules which have since been adopted. Professor Röthlisberger, as the working official of the Berne Bureau, is the best posted man in the world on world-wide questions of copyright, and his volumes are authoritative in the highest degree. It may here be stated that a revision and new edition of "Bowker on Copyright," which is nearly out of print, has been deferred from time to time pending legislation in Canada, and is not to be expected until that legislation is shaped, unless the latter should be deferred beyond present expectations.

Since the passage of the British copyright code of 1911, there has really been no legislation of first importance in the world of copyright, although several of the lesser countries have adopted codes or laws and a number of treaty relations have been newly provided. The most important facts are the acceptance by Newfoundland, Australia and New Zealand of the British Imperial Code, putting these three dominions on the same basis as Great Britain itself. Newfoundland, it will be recalled, passed the simplest sort of acceptance act, while Australia and New Zealand have passed codes in parallel with and almost duplicating the British code. It is particularly noteworthy that Australia has given up the manufacturing requirement which previously it had enacted, and that New Zealand has followed her example. It is understood that much progress has been made in the South African dominion toward the same result, but as yet nothing has practically been done in Canada to fulfill the pledge which it is understood the Canadian government gave to the imperial authorities that copyright legislation would be promptly initiated in that dominion. The difficulty is that Canada is strongly disposed to follow the bad precedent of our own country in insisting on a manufacturing requirement, the adoption of which would put Canada outside the pale of reciprocal imperial protection.

In our own country a step in advance has been made by reducing the requirement for deposit copies to one copy in the case of books in a foreign language, but a more pressing question is a proposal to extend the ad interim period in the case of English books. As a matter of fact the effectiveness of this clause has been disappointing. Approximately 10,000 books a year are published in England, some of these by authors of large reputation, finding an immediate market in the United States and published by pre-arrangement, often simultaneously with English publication, under the regular copyright method. But out of this publication of 50,000 volumes in five years, only about 2,000 have registered under the ad interim clause, and of these less than 600 have actually completed copyright by manufacture in this country. In November of 1913, an actual count was made by the copyright office, which showed that up to that time, out of an ad interim registration of 1,571 only 437 had been published in America, of which number seventy-one were deposited too late for ad interim protection and thirty-six published beyond the statutory period, so that in more than four years only 330 English works were actually protected under the ad interim clause.

Aside from the books which are sure of the American market and, therefore, are copyrighted without reference to the ad interim clause (which of course are the most important books from the sales point of view), the value of the copyright provisions under the present code consists in the opportunity to judge which out of the great run of English books can be profitably manufactured in this country. This must be judged not only from careful examination of the books themselves, but by consideration of their public reception in England and of reviews in English periodicals and the reflex of these views in American publications. British authors have felt that the thirty and thirty days did not constitute a period sufficient to do them justice, and the low number of volumes actually copyrighted under the ad interim provision seems to confirm their view. There has even been talk of asking the British government to curtail American privileges in England because of this limitation.

There is now under discussion a proposal to extend the total period either to six months or one year, the prohibition of importation being extended during that period, as now. Without this prohibition the effect of the manufacturing clause would practically be negated and English publishers would have the run of the market so that a later American edition would in most cases be made impracticable. On the other hand, the argument is made that American book-buyers should not so long be deprived of the privilege of seeing and the right of buying English books. We have never favored the manufacturing clause, but so long as it is on the statute book, it is only fair that it should logically be carried out. Probably the happy mean in this case might be a six month's period, which would remove the objections of British authors and give them a fair chance here, without unduly limiting the opportunities of American book-buyers and their servitors, the booksellers.

The very latest development in copyright is the additional protocol adopted March 20, 1914, by the countries of the International Copyright Union, of which a translation is given elsewhere in this issue, and which is definitely intended to permit retaliatory restriction where countries outside the copyright union do not grant full reciprocal relations. It is at our own country that this protocol is especially aimed, and it can be no surprise that the action has been taken. It will permit Great Britain to impose on American authors any of the restrictions which we place upon English authors, so that we ourselves may know how the shoe pinches. We cannot ask more than we grant, and although Great Britain is not likely to put upon American authors as serious restrictions as we put upon English authors, we shall have no reason to complain even should she go to that limit. Possibly the extension of the ad interim period for English books may meet present requirements sufficiently to justify Great Britain in ignoring the permissive authority given by the new protocol.

MODIFICATION OF THE BERNE-BERLIN COPYRIGHT CONVENTION OF 1908.

THE following additional protocol to the Convention of 1908 adopted by the countries of the International Copyright Union, March 20, 1914, is of especial importance in the United States because it doubtless originated in and reflects the dissatisfaction with the manufacturing and other restrictions of our own copyright code felt by those countries which grant full copyright. Under it, Great Britain can impose counter-restriction on books of American authorship without violating its full relations of reciprocity with the other countries of the Union.

ADDITIONAL PROTOCOL TO THE REVISED BERNE CONVENTION OF NOVEMBER 13, 1908.

THE countries, members of the International Union for the protection of literary and artistic works, desiring to authorize an optional limitation of the extent of the Convention of November 13, 1908, have, by mutual agreement, adopted the following Protocol:

1. When a country not belonging to the Union does not protect in a sufficient manner the works of authors who belong to a country of the Union, the provisions of the Convention of November 13, 1908, cannot prejudice, in any way, the right which appertains to the contracting countries to restrict the protection of works of which the authors are, at the moment of the first publication of these works, subjects or citizens of the said country not being a member of the Union, and are not actually domiciled in one of the countries of the Union.
2. The right accorded to the contracting States by the present Protocol, equally appertains to each of their trans-marine possessions.
3. No restrictions established in virtue of No. 1, above, may prejudice the rights which an author has acquired upon a work published in one of the countries of the Union prior to the putting into force of these restrictions.
4. The States which, in virtue of the present protocol, limit the protection of the rights of authors, will notify the Government of the Swiss Confederation by a written declaration indicating the countries against which the protection is restricted, and also the restrictions to which the rights of authors from these countries are submitted. The Government of the Swiss Confederation communicates at once the fact to all the other states of the Union.
5. The present Protocol to be ratified, and the ratifications to be deposited in Berne within a maximum delay of twelve months from its date. It enters into force one month after the expiration of this delay, and has the same power and duration as the Convention to which it relates.

In witness whereof the Plenipotentiaries of the countries, members of the Union, have signed the present Protocol, of which a certified copy is to be transmitted to each of the governments of the Union.

Made in Berne, the 20th day of March, 1914, in only one copy deposited in the Archives of the Swiss Confederation.

THE COPYRIGHT LAWS OF ALL COUNTRIES.

FROM the indefatigable pen of Prof. Ernst Röthlisberger, we have before us the third edition of "Urheberrechts-Gesetze und Verträge in allen Ländern, nebst den Bestimmungen über das Verlagsrecht" (G. Hedeler, Leipzig, 1914, 561 p.) the official copyright documents of all countries in German translation. We have also received the complementary volume, a condensation of the first "Der interne und der internationale Schutz des Urheberrechts in den Ländern des Erdballs" (Verlag des Börsenvereins der Deutschen Buchhändler, Leipzig, 1914, xii + 195 p.)—also the work of Prof. Röthlisberger.

The first volume, giving the actual text under countries in alphabetical order, of all laws, conventions, treaties and special agreements now in force and not superseded (with a few exceptions) is a third edition of a collection first prepared by G. Hedeler in 1896, containing 263 pages; in 1902 Professor Röthlisberger edited a second edition of 418 pages; while this third edition in small print has grown to 561 pages, an indication of the growth of copyright legislation, and also in a measure, the care with which this new volume has been revised and made practically complete. A case in point is the United States, under which Professor Röthlisberger has not only included the United States law of 1909 and amendatory laws, but the copyright office rules and regulations, Supreme Court regulations, treasury decisions and the state laws bearing on copyright. The American publisher, however, may wonder at and regret the omission of the Canadian laws 1875-1908, with their provisions considerably different from the British act of 1911, especially because even with the passing of a new Canadian act, it is perhaps to be expected that present formalities (probably also the stringent manufacturing clause in retaliation to the United States) will be included in any new Canadian legislation. A summary of these laws, however, is contained in the second volume. The laws of New Zealand and the South African Union are also omitted, but New Zealand has accepted the British act, with minor exceptions (August 22, 1913; noted in PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of November 29, 1913), and the South African Union is likely to accept the British code.

In addition to the laws, the first volume includes the various international conventions under separate division. It is interesting to note the latest (the fifth) of the Pan-American conventions, that of Caracas (or Bolivian convention) of July 17, 1911, which Ecuador alone has ratified, but to which Bolivia,

Colombia, Peru and Venezuela were signatories. In almost every case these conventions are followed by the actual text of the various ratifications with the special exceptions. Under this division are also included all treaties and special agreements in full text. Then follows the register by countries, an alphabetical list giving the laws in force (with dates), convention and treaty dates with page references. Last is the subject index, again subdivided under laws, conventions and treaties, with country and page references—a very valuable and necessary addition.

The second volume, also in its third edition, is a condensation, a handbook for practical reference, of all copyright legislation, summarized under the more salient points (as works copyrightable, duration of copyright, formalities, special rights, copyright protection and procedure, including an important division of bibliography under each country). Both volumes include colonies, possessions, protectorates and territories under the mother country.

This second volume also includes an alphabetical table of countries giving their domestic laws and treaties, not as complete in matter or as informing as the table in the volume of the full texts, though more complete as including every country with or without copyright legislation. A second table gives the international status of works when published in a foreign country; a third the adhesion of countries to the international conventions; and a fourth special treaties and agreements. Then follows the condensation of the copyright material, beginning with the various conventions, Berlin (not the original Berne convention), Montevideo, Washington, Caracas, Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, summarizing them under the subdivisions indicated above, followed by the list of countries adhering. This division is then followed, as Part II, by the summary under countries. It may be noted that this volume does not have the running page headings of countries, which makes the first volume the easier for reference.

Several mooted points seem to have been made clear by Professor Röthlisberger: for instance, the correction of a persistent error (pointed out in Bowker on Copyright p. 410) in foreign translations of the Spanish copyright text of the provision regarding the return of the assigned right to the heirs of the original copyright proprietor twenty-five years after the author's death to complete the original copyright term of life and eighty years, i. e., for the ensuing fifty-five years; and as to the question of the inclusion of the Dominican Republic and Cuba under the Mexico City Convention. The former is now definitely included (June 15, 1907) and Cuba is omitted.

It is interesting to note the increasing copyright legislation in many countries, and perhaps a summary of this since the publication early in 1912 of the American authority on this subject, R. R. Bowker's "Copyright, its history and its law," might here be included:

Laws:

- Liberia, copr. act, Dec. 22, 1911.
 Switzerland, civil code, Jan. 1, 1912.
 Brazil, act protecting foreign authors, Jan. 20, 1912.
 Uruguay, copr. act, Mch. 15, 1912.
 Denmark, copr. act, April 1, 1912.
 Newfoundland accepts British act of 1911, Apr. 12, 1912.
 Holland, copr. act, Sept. 23, 1912.
 Australia accepts British act of 1911, Nov. 20, 1912.
 India included under British act, Oct. 30, 1912.
 New Zealand included under British act, Aug. 22, 1913.
 U. S. amendatory laws of Aug. 24, 1912, Mch. 2, 1913, and Mch. 28, 1914*.

Orders, decrees, ordinances.

- Spain, ordinance of Sept. 4, 1911, requiring name of author on all photographic reproductions.
 Gt. Britain, regulations, mostly during 1912, including almost all of its colonies, possessions and protectorates under the British act of 1911.
 Netherlands, new law applicable to Java (Dec. 24, 1913), Curaçao (Dec. 17, 1912) and Surinam (Mch. 22, 1913).
 Gt. Britain, orders including Newfoundland (Sept. 4, 1913) and Australia (Oct. 30, 1913) under Berlin convention. (Also Papua and Isle of Norfolk.)
 France, ministerial order regarding works of art Mch. 18, 1913.
 Italy, law applicable to Lybien, Ap. 20, 1913.

Treaties.

- Switzerland-Colombia, general treaty, including copyright protection Mch. 14, 1908.
 Russia grants copyright to France with 10-year term, Nov. 29, 1911.
 United States-Hungary, Jan. 30, 1912.
 Gt. Britain-Hungary, June 24, 1912.
 Austria-Spain, Ap. 13, 1912.
 Spain-Panama, July 25, 1912.
 United States-Tunis, Oct. 4, 1912.
 United States-Denmark, Feb. 22, 1913.
 Germany-Russia, Feb. 28, 1913.
 France-Greece, Oct. 22, 1913.
 Argentina extends domestic copyright to citizens of France, Italy and Spain under reciprocity provision. [P. W. Nov. 29, 1913.]*

Conventions.

- Denmark joins Berlin conv. June 26, 1912.
 Gt. Britain joins Berlin conv. In force July 1, 1912.
 Netherlands joins Berlin conv. Nov. 1, 1912.
 For the colonies April 1, 1913.
 Brazil joins Berlin conv., Dec. 31, 1912.*
 Dominican Republic included under Mexico City conv. June 15, 1907.
 Panama Jan. 17, 1911, and Brazil Oct. 13, 1912, ratify the Rio de Janeiro conv. But the convention has never become effective among the seven ratifying countries.

*These items are taken not from Prof. Röthlisberger's volume but from the files of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in order to make the list complete. These are also to be found summarized in the American Library Annual, 1912-14.

Brazil, Dec. 31, 1910; Dominican Republic, Ap. 18, 1912; Guatemala, May, 1912; Honduras, Jan. 30, 1913. Panama, Mch. 13, 1913 and Nicaragua [P. W. Feb. 15, 1913]* have all ratified the Buenos Aires convention of 1910, a total of seven countries, including the United States.

Protocol permitting countries of Copyright Union retaliatory restriction with countries not granting full reciprocal relations added to Berne conv. Mch. 20, 1914.*

Ecuador has ratified the Caracas convention as already noted.

The two volumes give a wonderfully complete picture of copyright law in all its branches. The work connected with it must have been unending in its detail and laborious in the correct translation into German of the many mooted points in the laws themselves, often difficult enough of interpretation in the original language. One can understand how carefully and painstakingly the work has been done when one remembers those lucid digests of copyright law which regularly appear in the Droit d'Auteur, of which Professor Röthlisberger is the editor. It is with confidence in its completeness that we take up any work from the pen of Professor Röthlisberger, especially these volumes which show so much of thorough planning and workmanship.

MAKING WORDS COUNT.

No body of advertisers are more obsessed with the hackneyed word and the overworked phrase than those engaged in exploiting books. To such, therefore, a recent article in Printers' Ink, answering the question: "What shall be the remedy, for the 'tired' and 'worn-out' words that make ads dull reading?" comes with peculiar interest. Philip Littell, the author, is a New York editorial writer, whose work has attracted attention quite as much for its freshness of style as for its shrewdness of comment.

The advertiser, regarded as a user of words, occupies a position which has several obvious peculiarities.

Alone among the users of words, he has to pay for every word he uses.

His aim is to make people do one of the hardest things in the world. He aims to make them decide. And, deciding, as William James has told us, is harder than thinking; just as thinking is harder than writing, and writing than reading—harder, that is to say, if we measure difficulty by the quality of inward effort required.

The advertiser's competitors are nearer his reader's eye than the competitors of a novelist or of any other writer, excepting perhaps a poet in an anthology. The advertiser's competitors may be on the opposite page, the same page, even in the same column.

The advertiser tries to affect crowds of people. If he does this he succeeds. A novelist may do this and yet fail. The number of Hall Caine's readers does not make his novels good novels. They would be no better if you multiplied his public by ten. They would be no worse if nobody read them.

The crowd an advertiser tries to sway is not really a crowd. Each of his readers, regarded as a reader at the moment of reading, is solitary. An orator or a playwright can say many things which move his crowd merely because its members are together in one place. The advertiser lacks this advantage.

Not every advertiser, however, has to bother about his words. If you are offering Corona Coronas at two for a quarter, your words don't matter. Provided your reputation is good, your words, if intelligible, will be good enough.

Such cases are exceptional. As a rule the advertiser cares about his words. By words he can achieve variety, he can disguise the fact that in point of view, in spirit, in mental attitude, all advertising is and must be monotonous. The rules of the game impose monotony. They require advertising to be written by trained optimists, whose optimism is unbroken by anything save an occasional distrust of inferior substitutes.

WAYS OF AVOIDING MONOTONY.

An advertiser cannot, for instance, look at life as Samuel Butler looked at it when he put this sentence into "The Way of All Flesh": "The older I grow, the more convinced I become of the folly and incredulity of the public; but at the same time the harder do I see it is to impose oneself upon that folly and credulity." Such a mental attitude, I imagine would never do for an advertiser.

When trying to counteract this essential monotony by the variety of his words, the advertiser discovers that there are ways to variety which he cannot follow. Violent language is not his affair. He cannot imitate George Meredith's description of the impression left in him by a novel of Catulle Mendés. Meredith felt as if he had been taken I won't say where, and had been shot out at last "into the rat-rioting sewers, twisted, whirled, tumbled amid the frothing filth, the deadly stench, the reek and roar of the damned."

The advertiser cannot try for the "delicately, evasively simple effects" which Arthur Symons says Robert Bridges obtains "by coaxing beautiful, alien words to come together willingly, and take service with him, as if they had been born under his care." A man reading an advertisement has not time for delicate and evasive simplicity. They would not pay the advertiser.

Nor would it pay him to cultivate "the art which was capable," George Santayana tells us, "of making a gem of every prose sentence—the art which, carried perhaps to a pitch at which it becomes too conscious, made the phrases of Tacitus a series of cameos." I shall not quote Tacitus, partly because I am not sure all my readers would understand him, partly because I am sure that I shouldn't, but here is an example in verse of the kind of writing Mr. Santayana had in mind. It is from Tennyson, and describes what is visible through a telescope on a tower, although "she" did not need a telescope:

Hither, when all the deep unsounded skies
Were shuddering with silent stars, she clomb,
And, as with optic glasses, her keen eyes
Pierced thro' the mystic dome.
Regions of lucid matter taking forms,
Brushes of fire, hazy gleams,
Clusters and beds of worlds, and bee-like swarms
Of suns, and starry streams.

It takes patience to appreciate such an exquisite use of words. Even if an advertiser happened to have Tennyson's genius he would not write in this way. His readers are in a hurry.

LIBERTIES AN ADVERTISER MAY TAKE WITH SPEECH.

His freedoms, however, are more important than his restrictions. He can take such liberties with speech as many other writers must avoid. I remember being carried, as a child, into a museum filled with pictures which seemed to have three dimensions. The eccentric painter illuded you into crediting some of the objects before you with solidity. You looked about, half expecting a notice to warn you that fruit taken from the pictures would be charged extra. There is no reason why an advertiser should not act on the hint given by these pictures, no reason why he should not make some of his words stick out, no reason why he need be afraid people will say of his style, as Lord Morley says of Macaulay's, that we "wince under its stamping emphasis." The advertiser often needs all the emphasis there is. He may be as emphatic, if he cares to and knows how, as a motor tire bursting.

Of course, it is true that an advertiser may gain attention for his words without making them serve his purpose. If he filled his expensive space with words chosen for their beauty—seraphim, firmamental, beryl, orpiment, handmaiden—his money would be wasted. So it would be if he chose words for their oddity; if instead of saying there was "not a headache in a barrel" of his whiskey, he assured us that it was "not infelificic"; or if he talked about the virescence of the opifice when he meant the greenness of the fabric. His words might get attention, but they would not sell his goods. "You may," says Mr. Yellowplush, in his epistle to Sir Edward Lytton Bulwer, Bart., "you may, for instance, call a coronet a coronal if you like, as you might call a hat 'a swart sombrero,' 'a glossy four-and-nine,' 'a silken helm, to storm impermeable and lightsome as the breezy gossamer,' but, in the long run, it's as well to call it a hat."

SOME WORDS ARE WORN OUT AND VERY "TIRED."

No advertiser is unwise enough to play such tricks. I sometimes wonder why any advertiser still uses worn-out words, which have been discarded by his more progressive competitors—words like tremendous, aristocratic, musical treat, distinctive, different, unique—whose virtue for advertising purposes went out of them long ago. Stale praise of fresh articles is a poor thing. You cannot make what you have to sell seem "different" just by labeling it "different."

To make people believe in this difference you must make them feel the difference in your words. You may, of course, succeed in restoring to dulled or tired words their vigor and brightness. William James makes "unique" live again when he says: "In [Herbert] Spencer, as in every concrete individual, there is a uniqueness that defies all formulation," for here the word says no more than he means. A like kind office is done for "tremendous" by Stevenson when he speaks of the dwellers in the slopes of a volcano living carefree in "that tremendous neighborhood."

One expedient by which stale words may be freshened is their use in their original senses, grown nowadays a little unfamiliar. Those of us who have lived through a war scare remember how tired, how very tired, the hope that war might be averted finally made us. Everybody was saying "averted." But when Max Beerbohm, using the word in its original sense of "turned away," says "he kept his head averse," it becomes as good as new. When Pater talked about "the discerning edge" of language, he both reminds us that to discern once meant to divide and makes us remember his use of it. There is here, however, some danger of a kind of affectation which would hurt an advertisement. You and I are amused at finding Max Beerbohm saying, "Not many youths occurred." But such nicety would be lost upon many readers of a prodigiously circulating magazine.

Invented words are often helpful. But are they—except, of course, as names of things for sale—really necessary? The number of existing words is considerable. On one hand the advertiser has this precious empty space of his, where the battle for more business must be gained or lost by words. On his other hand is a waiting list consisting of all the words in all the dictionaries. Which words shall he choose? For he must choose, and carefully. He cannot just let in the first comer; he must proceed by sharp separate acts of the will. The practical nature of his aim governs his choice. Though his words speak with the tongues of men and of angels and bring not business, they are as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

The only way to make your words count is the old way—by choosing the words you want and putting them where you want them. Easy to say, hard to do. Yet many advertisers, and many other writers, have done it. Here is a sentence from "The Private Papers of Henry Rycroft," by George Gissing: "I would not speak unkindly of anything in cask or bottle which bears the great name of wine." It is partly the position of "wine" that gives the word greater value here than it often has, and partly the skill which leads us to this word by way of "cask" and "great name."

OLD WORDS IN NEW ROLES.

Words which go about arm in arm, which are seen together constantly, which nearly always bore us when we meet them, may appear in a place so unexpected that our surprise is not unpleasant. Such a pair is

"laughter and tears." They became inseparable long ago. Whenever Dickens was mentioned they used to show themselves. They are trotted out as often as a new book is published by any author who tries to combine a sense of humor with a heart of gold. But suppose, in turning the pages of The Congressional Record, we came upon this:

"MR. CAMPBELL.—You are proceeding upon exactly the same theories that you proceeded upon then; you are using blind, partisan political arguments as a basis for tariff legislation rather than information scientifically gathered in enacting legislation upon this important subject.

"THE SPEAKER.—The time of the gentleman has expired." (Laughter and tears.)

A Vice-President is frequently a man whom hardly anybody notices. A colored laundress may be equally insignificant. But let them appear arm in arm on Pennsylvania Avenue, and their juxtaposition is an event significant, as Carlyle used to say, of much. So with words. Words may be made to count more than double simply by being brought together. For in advertising, as in every other art, one and one often make more than two. As when Chesterton calls Francis Thompson a "shy volcano," or when Bernard Shaw says of one of our most protuberant philanthropists: "When Mr. Carnegie rattled his millions in his pockets, all England became one rapacious cringe." A more striking example is to be found in this passage, often quoted, from Mr. Whistler's "Ten o'Clock":

Still, seldom does Nature succeed in producing a picture.

The sun blazes, the wind blows from the east, the sky is bereft of cloud, and without, all is of iron. The windows of the Crystal Palace are seen from all points of London. The holiday-maker rejoices in the glorious day, and the painter turns aside to shut his eyes.

How little this is understood, and how dutifully the casual in Nature is accepted as the sublime, may be gathered from the unlimited admiration daily produced by a very foolish sunset.

Thus does Whistler, by bringing two common words together, succeed in hardening our hearts against most of the adjectives employed as sunset guns. But he has not killed a single appropriate adjective. Our pleasure in his "very foolish sunset" cannot lessen our pleasure in Tennyson's wanderer out in ocean

Where some refulgent sunset of India
Streams o'er a rich ambrosial ocean isle,
And crimson hued the stately palmwoods
Whisper in odorous heights of even.

Is this use of words by Whistler, Shaw or Chesterton too striking to be imitated with profit? I do not believe it. I have read, to be sure, that striking words are not good advertising; that they call attention off the thing advertised and fix it upon the words themselves. Surely that depends upon whether the user of striking words knows his business. John Millington Synge, who certainly knew his business as a playwright, complained of Ibsen and Zola for dealing with the reality of life "in joyless and pallid words." "In a good play," he wrote in the preface to "The Playboy of the Western World," "every speech should be as fully flavored as a nut or apple." He was not afraid the glories of his words would distract our attention from what he had to say.

Carlyle draws us a picture of Dr. Johnson, "with his open mouth and face of bruised honeycomb." Words could not well be more striking, but do they keep us from thinking of Johnson? Do not they rather make us see him more vividly than people we know?

WHISTLER'S FINE USE OF WORDS.

If we think there is something a little glaring in the examples I have been giving, if we seek a quieter, finer quality of surprise, Whistler can give us this also. In the same "Ten o'Clock," after saying that art may turn her back upon us, no matter how virtuous we are, he goes on:

As from time immemorial, she has done upon the Swiss in their mountains.

What more worthy people! Whose every Alpine gap yawns with tradition, and is stocked with noble story, yet the perverse and scornful one will none of it, and the sons of patriots are left with the clock that turns the mill, and the sudden cuckoo, with difficulty restrained in its box.

For this was Tell a herol For this did Gessler die!

"Yawns with tradition," said of an Alpine gap, is not so striking as "sudden cuckoo." It is still less striking than "foolish sunset," but who says it is not so good? No one disputes its superlative skill.

In "Ave" George Moore tells us how he said to William Butler Yeats, after they had been discussing the words of a play they were about to write, "But, Yeats, a play cannot be written in dialect, nor do I think it can be written by turning common phrases which rise up in the mind into uncommon phrases." "That," answered Yeats, "is what one is always doing."

An example of this art may be taken from Yeats himself. The words "salt tears" are found together often—too often to be repeated by such a fastidious writer as Yeats. But they must have suggested to him the act of creation which gave us "the salt eye of man."

And it was a familiar phrase, a hackneyed phrase, that may have suggested to Max Beerbohm this sentence, which is neither: "Aloft, above the wide brim of his silk hat and the white extent of his shirt front, appeared those eyes which hawks, that nose which eagles, had often envied."

Strong men take to their heels when anybody begins to tell them "it was so quiet you could have heard a pin drop." But nobody objected to the aviator, describing his flight across the continent, who said, "It was so quiet you could have heard a pin drop on Chicago."

Many are the expedients by which an advertiser, or any other writer, can try to make his words count, provided he does not try to make all of them count. The worst way of writing, says Anatole France, is to write too well. It is wise to remember, whatever kind of writing we have in hand, that pumpkins are less conspicuous when assembled in a grocery than they are when scattered among the bleaching cornstalks; that poppies show against a wheat field as they never can against a sunset, whether foolish or refulgent.

FURTHER PLANS FOR THE CONVENTION.

ARRANGEMENTS are being completed for the entertainment of the members and their guests during the approaching convention beginning Monday, May 11th. A reception to the officers will be held at the Hotel Astor on the evening of Monday, May 11th, and all who are in New York on that day are invited to attend. The theatre party will take place on Wednesday evening, May 13th, one of the most popular attractions now running to be selected. Reservations for this may be made by addressing Mr. B. W. Huebsch (225 Fifth Avenue, New York City), tickets to be paid for on Tuesday, May 12th. The application for tickets to the banquet thus far indicates a larger attendance than ever before. The banquet committee announce that the following speakers will address the members after the banquet on May 14th: The Hon. Marcus M. Marks, president of the Borough of Manhattan; Dr. Talcott Williams, director of the School of Journalism; Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, president of The American Publishers' Association; Hofrat Horst Weber, proprietor of the Illustrirte Zeitung, and head of the publishing house bearing his name in Leipzig; and Belmore Browne, who will describe his ascent of Mt. McKinley, illustrating his talk with lantern slides.

Seats are being allotted in the order of receipt of applications which should be sent to the treasurer. Remittance must accompany orders for tickets. The capacity of the banquet room is limited and the least desirable places will, in all fairness, be given to those who wait until the last moment. Price $4.00 per ticket.

Those who have received membership tickets for the current year should bring them to the convention, as this greatly facilitates the work of registration. These tickets admit only to the convention session and have nothing to do with the banquet.

NEW YORK MERCHANTS PROTEST AGAINST PRICE CUTTING.

THAT the principle of price maintenance is popular among retail merchants of the metropolitan district was emphatically proven by the large audience which attended the big Stevens bill rally in Aeolian Hall, New York City, on April 24th.

"Probably never before," says the Journal of Commerce, "have retail merchants in all classes so spontaneously turned out in favor of a piece of mercantile legislation and the unanimity which encouraged and applauded the speakers proved beyond all question that retailers of the independent type want to be protected from price cutters."

Dr. W. C. Anderson, president of the New York Pharmaceutical Conference, presided and the speakers were Ellis L. Howland, Congressman Herman A. Metz, Alfred D. Woodruff, food supply expert of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, and Nicholas Ehrlich, president of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of America.

Congressman Metz devoted his remarks to a comparison of the Stevens and Metz bills, which are almost identical, but in some details disagree.

The Metz bill, he said, provides that articles the trademark for which has been registered in the United States Patent Office shall be covered. This, he said, should be extended to entitle all proprietary products, whether protected under common law or by registry in the Patent Office, to have the same protection.

It also provides that the proprietor shall file in the Bureau of Corporations his schedule price as a standard and to be the basis on which he makes a claim for damages for violation. It also provides that in case of a cut in price or a change, such change must be filed with the Bureau of Corporations at least thirty days before sales at the newly established prices may be made. This is for the purpose of establishing a date on which new prices are to take effect and to give all retailers a chance to clear their stock. Both bills leave out of consideration a quantity schedule.

The Stevens bill, said Mr. Metz, in Article B, provides that each package shall bear the name and address of the vendor as well as the uniform price for which it shall be sold to the public.

Article C provides that no discount of any kind from the fixed price to wholesaler or retailer, according to his status, shall be allowed for quantity under any consideration.

Mr. Howland said that protected prices would supplement the spirit of the Sherman law. "The manufacturer," he said, "will not deny that he is a monopolist—in his own brand. He prefers to regard the merchants as his 'distributors,' rather than as independent merchants. If he be a wise manufacturer he frankly admits that when he acquired the privileges of a monopolist he assumed responsibilities also. One of them is to see that his distributors get a fair chance for a free field and a fair profit. In a sense he regards them as his employees, entitled to a just reward for their services. He says he did not sell them the merchandise without reservation, but rather that what he sold was a license to skim a certain profit off what he made and put in their hands for delivery."

The speakers agreed that the public derives no benefit from price cutting, as the amount taken off the price of one article by the big stores is added to another.

The audience was thoughtful and appreciative and at points warmed to enthusiasm over the proposition. At the conclusion of the meeting the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Whereas, the habit of price-cutting on standardized and trademarked articles of merchandise has assumed such vicious proportions that it now threatens the business existence of all retailers of small or moderate capital, and

Whereas, the consuming public is being plundered and outraged by a scheme of business which depends upon deception rather than an exchange of real and recognized values, and

Whereas, present conditions tend toward an imminent monopoly of the channels of distribution—a monopoly that would be vaster and more potent for evil than any trust hitherto conceived; be it therefore

Resolved, That we, the independent retail Merchants of Greater New York and the Metropolitan District, sound an earnest note of warning to Congress and to the people at large and counsel immediate action against present and impending attacks on the integrity of American commerce; and be it further

Resolved, That we solemnly indorse and promise heartily to support the Stevens bill (H. R. 13305), now pending in Congress, which promises honestly in merchandising and equal opportunity to all business men and consumers alike; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to send a copy to the president, to every member of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, to the governors and every member of the State Legislatures of New York and New Jersey.

It was announced that similar meetings are to be held in Baltimore, Denver, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Philadelphia, and that plans were under way for a large protest meeting in Madison Square Garden later.

MACY & CO. MOTION DENIED.

THE Supreme Court on April 27th, denied a motion made on behalf of R. H. Macy & Co. to remand the so-called "book trust" case to the Federal Court with instructions to reopen it and award higher damages. The Chief Justice, however, announced that the appeal which is pending would be advanced for hearing early in October.

CHANGES IN THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the American Book Company, Mr. H. T. Ambrose announced his desire to retire from the presidency of the company, but expressed his willingness to serve as chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Ambrose's resignation was accepted with regret, and the board promptly availed itself of his services as chairman. He will continue to take a lively interest in the business welfare of the company, and will preside at its board meetings.

Mr. Ambrose was a member of the firm of Van Antwerp, Bragg & Company, one of the predecessors of the American Book Company; and when the latter corporation was formed, he became its first treasurer. He was elected president in 1895 and has served with conspicuous ability and success down to the present time. The company under his administration has been at all times prosperous, and its financial standing has been a synonym for soundness and stability. He has large interests outside the company, and has very recently purchased extensive orange and grape fruit groves in Florida, where he will spend a part of his time.

Mr. Ambrose is succeeded as President by L. M. Dillman, of Chicago, who has been managing director of the company at that point for some years past.

A. V. Barnes continues as vice-president, and C. P. Batt as treasurer; John Arthur Greene has been elected secretary and chief of the agency department to succeed the late Colonel Tucker.

The promotion of Mr. Greene and of Mr. Dillman has resulted in important changes of organization in the New York and Chicago offices. J. R. Fairchild has been made manager at New York, and Leonard E.

Reibold and Ralph S. Foss, assistant managers. Louis B. Lee has been made manager at Chicago, and James C. Dockrill, assistant manager.

W. B. Thalheimer resigned as managing director at Cincinnati, and was elected chief of the manufacturing department. Frank R. Ellis was elected managing director at Cincinnati, with W. T. H. Howe as assistant manager.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE OF NEW YORK FIELD DAY.

THE Booksellers' League will hold its much talked-of field day, dance and dinner on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 27th, at Boehm's large seaside park, New Dorp, Staten Island. The attractions of the place selected are many, including a large baseball field with a running track around it. The dining hall, dancing pavilion, bowling alleys and bathing pavilion all face a beautiful broad beach.

A very attractive program for the afternoon and evening has been arranged as follows: a baseball game between two picked nines in the booktrade and field sports, consisting of 100-yard dash, once around the track race, standing broad jump, running broad jump, putting the shot, fat man's race, and three-legged race. There will be dancing and bowling afternoon and evening and opportunity for a swim for those who wish it. After an afternoon spent in the open, the dinner which will be served at 6:30 p. m. will undoubtedly prove a most welcome part of the program.

Prizes will be awarded the winners of the field games and the bowling champions. There will be several prizes drawn for at the dinner, and the committee hope to have souvenirs for all the ladies present. The members of the committee are working hard to make this a "gala" day in the booktrade, and promise that all who attend will surely have a good time. Arrangements have been made for the taking of a large outdoor picture of the entire party. The L. E. Waterman Co. has already started the prize ball a-rolling by contributing a ladies' and a gentleman's gold mounted Ideal fountain pen. These pens will be used as drawn prizes at the dinner.

Those who wish to attend are advised to secure their tickets early, as the seating capacity of the dining room is limited. Tickets (including dinner, dancing and games), $1.50 each, can be had from the chairman of the executive committee, William S. McKeachie, care of The Baker & Taylor Co.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES PETITION IN TIMES COPYRIGHT SUIT.

THE Supreme Court of the United States denied on April 27th the petition of The New York Times Company for a writ of certiorari to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the review of proceedings affirming a decree of the United States Court for the Southern District of New York dismissing on demurrer The New York Times bill of complaint in the suit for an injunction to restrain The Sun from infringing The Times's copyright of Roald Amundsen's account of his discovery of the South Pole.

This decision does not affect the validity of the copyright or prevent suit for damages for infringement.

COMMUNICATIONS.

April 27, 1914.

To the Editor of The Publisher's Weekly:

As CHAIRMAN of the banquet committee for the American Booksellers' Association, permit me to explain our decision to discontinue giving souvenirs. We acted only after consulting enough members to convince us that we would have the approval of a majority of booksellers.

A custom that began with the courtesy of publishers who presented books by authors who happened to be speakers at the dinners gave signs of sinking into a mere opportunity to advertise related merchandise. The impropriety of discriminating against would-be donors makes it almost inevitable that we distribute an undignified assortment of gimcracks suggestive of a five-and-ten-cent store, relieved sometimes by an article of merit. Indeed it is unfair to ask or expect firms to present goods of considerable value in quantities of five hundred when we know that perhaps less than half of our attendance is composed of retail booksellers, the legitimate recipients.

Souvenirs that we would like to present, such as in some cases we have had in the past, we may not demand, and of those that are offered voluntarily, few are relevant or desirable.

The custom is a relic of another day that must at some time be abandoned. It has already become top-heavy. As soon as the distribution of something for nothing becomes a feature so important that it competes in interest with the function of which it should be a detail, it develops into a case of the tail wagging the dog and should be dropped. The committee deliberately (and unanimously, all but one absent member voting) followed their conviction that this was the acceptable time to do it, though they were regretfully conscious that some diners would hold a contrary view.

B. W. HUEBSCH.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE Rev. John W. Hunter, father of Paul Hunter, of Nashville, Tenn., died in that city on April 22nd, aged ninety years. In 1850 he engaged with the Methodist Publishing House in Nashville. During his long career, and almost up to the time of his death, he continued to sell books, and preached the Gospel as an itinerant. He was the oldest and best-known bookseller in the state.

By THE death of Tillotson Wheeler Gilson textbook publishing loses another of its best-known leaders and thousands of teachers lose a personal friend. Mr. Gilson died at his home in Winchester, Massachusetts, on April 23d. He was born at Hartland, Vermont, August 6, 1849. He was graduated from Dartmouth in 1874. After some experience in teaching, he became associated with D. Appleton and Company, finding what was to be his life-work—educational publishing. He soon transferred his connection to the J. B. Lippincott Company, with whom he remained for some ten years. He joined Ginn and Company as a member of the firm in 1892. His great work for this company was done as manager of the common school department of the Chicago office. In 1906 he removed to Boston to take charge of the New England sales department of Ginn and Company. A serious illness about the time of this transfer left its imprint on his constitution, and some two years ago he was relieved from his duties in the active management of the business. Since that time he has been associated with the editorial department of Ginn and Company. For this editorial work he had unusual natural qualifications which, supplemented by his long and varied experience, made his advice and judgment of the greatest value.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HUGH WALPOLE's new novel, "The Duchess of Wrexhe," formerly announced as an Autumn publication, is now listed for June. George H. Doran Company are Mr. Walpole's publishers.

ERNEST THOMPSON SETON and Dan Beard, the two greatest "boys' men" in the United States, have accepted positions as the associate editors of Boys' Life, the Boy Scouts' official monthly magazine.

THE PRICE of "Studies of Missionary Leadership," advertised by the Presbyterian Board of Publication as $1.50 net in the PUBLISHER'S WEEKLY of April 18th, has been changed to $1.25 net.

MISS JEAN WEBSTER's "Daddy-Long-Legs" is proving a tremendously popular success in Chicago, with Miss Ruth Chatterton playing Judy. The play, which Miss Webster herself dramatized, will be seen in New York in the fall.

ANOTHER BOOK, by Mary Antin, with another biblical title is announced by Houghton Mifflin Co. "They Who Knock at Our Gates," like "The Promised Land," is a presentation of the immigrant problem by one who knows what it feels like to be an immigrant. The book will be ready May 9th.

OWEN JOHNSON's "The Salamander" has the distinction of being launched in a larger edition than any other book published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company in the last five years. The story gets its title from the adventurous heroine, who, though by no means a conventional person, goes through fire unharmed.

LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE will be represented among the spring books by a novel entitled "The Lone Wolf," to be issued this month by Little, Brown & Company. "Lone Wolf" is a creature of the Paris slums who finally wins his way into the highest circles.

THE EDUCATION OF A BOY who, at sixteen, was made a Doctor of Laws and appointed to the teaching staff of the University of Berlin, is undoubtedly of interest to American parents and educators. The system by which, it is claimed, Witte's remarkable mental brilliancy was developed, is set forth in "The Education of Karl Witte; or the Training of the Child," published by the T. Y. Crowell Co.

OUR NEIGHBORS the Canadian Alps, are the subject of a new work on mountain-climbing, "Mountaineering and Exploration in the Selkirks," by Howard Palmer, published by Putnam. The book has over 200 illustrations and maps. "A Lady and Her Husband," a Putnam novel, by Amber Reeves, tells of the difficulties that arise between a woman who has awakened to social responsibility, and a man who has the individualistic viewpoint.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT has occupied a great deal of his leisure time in the last several years in preparing "Life Histories of African Game Animals" (Scribner). It is a joint production of himself and Edmund Heller of the Scientific Department of the United States Natural History Museum who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on his African expedition. Colonel Roosevelt wrote the first draughts of the life-history account of each species, and of two of the introductory chapters.

SUCH A GARDEN as a little girl in a story book might find on opening, the enchanted door is described in a sumptuous volume by Phebe Westcott Humphreys, "The Practical Book of Garden Architecture" (Lippincott). Miss Humphreys tells us how to make fountains and lakes, gateways and pergolas, windmills and bridges—indeed all the beautiful things that can transform a prosaic plot into a garden of romance. The book is as well suited to those who have a modest piece of ground and ambitions to match as to the large land owner.

AT THIS CRISIS in the Mexican situation, "The Mexican People; Their Struggle for Freedom," by L. Gutierrez de Lara and Edgcomb Pinchon, which Doubleday Page are about to publish is of singular importance because it gives an explanation of the whole intricate question in Mexico to-day and because it shows the exact position of the Mexican people in regard to foreign intervention. The book is probably the first expression of the voice of the Mexican common people.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—Bible Calendar and Publishing Company, of 30 East Forty-second Street, bookseller and publisher, is reported to have filed a petition without paying the filing fees of $30. W. B. Oliver, the treasurer, stated that the company has no cash and cannot obtain the money to pay the fees. The liabilities are $6,562 and assets of nominal value, consisting of eighty-one shares of stock of the Daily Bible Publishing Company and a note of $4,400 of the same company. It is said that the company was taken over by the Daily Bible Publishing Company in January last. Among the creditors are the City of New York, $20, personal taxes; H. E. Baright, $2,200, and the Methodist Book Concern, $520.

NEW YORK CITY.—Thomas Whittaker, Inc., of 2 Bible House, organized in 1907 to take over the old established business of Thomas Whittaker, for many years publisher of Protestant Episcopal books and periodicals, and dealer in ecclesiastical goods, was declared insolvent on April 27th in the Supreme Court in a report by Schuyler C. Carlton, as referee. The report was filed in a proceeding by the directors for permission to dissolve the corporation. The referee found that the assets are only $13,206, of which $113 is cash, while the debts are $21,905.

PASADENA, CAL.—The business of Clinton W. Williams, bookseller and stationer, is reported in the hands of a trustee.

POTSDAM, N. Y.—H. Van Ness, has discontinued the restaurant in connection with his store in Main Street, and will devote himself to the book, stationery and school supply business exclusively. He will also handle newspapers and periodicals.

UTICA, N. Y.—John L. Grant, books and stationery and wall paper dealer, has rented a block on the east side of Genesee street. The owner of the property will make a number of changes in the building, including a complete new front, and Mr. Grant expects to be able to occupy the block in August. The entire lower floor will be devoted to the books and stationery trade, making one of the finest book stores anywhere in the interior of the state. It will be roomy, convenient and light. The upper stories will be used for Mr. Grant's wall-paper business.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—Robert C. De-Rossett, bookseller, newsdealer and stationer, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

Allen, Abel Leighton. The message of New Thought. N. Y., Crowell. c. 8+283 p. por. D. $1.25 n.

Basic ideas of New Thought are set forth, and the line of divergence is traced between the new system of religion and the orthodox creeds and Christian Science. Author shows that New Thought is really only a term used to convey the idea of growing or developing thought, and that it relates to what is new or progressive and may be characterized, in the summing-up, as an attitude of mind rather than cult.

Bachelor, Irving Addison. The marryers; a history gathered from a brief of the Honorable Socrates Potter. N. Y., Harper. c. 5+217 p. il. D. $1 n.

For years Whitfield Norris, a financier had been black-mailed. In his youth he served a term in prison having taken his father's guilt on his own shoulders, and his constant dread was that his family should discover his secret. He finally put the matter into the hands of Socrates Potter, and then took his family to Europe. Potter joins them, and tells amusingly of how he defeated various titled Italians who wanted to marry Gwendolyn Norris, stopped the blackmailer, and was the means of bringing Gwendolyn and a fine young American together.

Barr, Mrs. Amelia Edith Huddleston. Playing with fire. il. by Howard Heath. N. Y., Appleton. c. 3+330 p. D. $1.35 n.

Picture of a man's struggle with his conscience, battle between faith and doubt. Ian Macrea, a stern Cal-vinist preacher, has built up an enormous congregation through his strong religious convictions. He becomes interested, however, in a number of books on free thought and modern German philosophy, and gradually his faith becomes undermined. His estrangement from his family, his withdrawal from his sacred duties, his ten years' effort to find the God he has lost and his ultimate restoration to faith, make up the novel.

Bergson, Henri Louis. Dreams; tr. with an introd. by Edn. E. Slosson. N. Y., Huebsch. c. '13. '14. 57 p. D. bds., 60 c. n.

Bergson believes that by means of dreams we delve into the unconscious substratum of our mentality for the memories which are there stored, that these memories are living and purposeful and gain consciousness when the opportunity offers. He says that our memories are packed away under pressure like steam in a boiler, and the dream is their escape valve. A reading of the book makes it possible to interpret one's dreams and to discover their significance.

Best, Harry. The deaf; their position in society and the provision for their education in the United States. N. Y., Crowell. c. 18+340 p. tabs. D. (Lib. of economics and politics), $2 n.

Object of study is to consider the attitude of society in America toward deaf and dumb, the duties it has recognized in respect to them, the status it has created for them, and the extent and forms, as well as the adequacy and correctness, of this treatment. The book is separated into two divisions, the first devoted to a discussion of the position of the deaf in society and the second to the provisions made for their education. Index.

Picture given in opening chapters is of pioneer life in a backwoods community in Indiana. The boys and girls at school, at home, at work and play. It is at this time that Sammy Goodman sees his father shot down and the murderer escape, and vows to bring him to justice. Later comes the Civil War, the boys volunteer and we follow their fortunes in camp and on the battlefield. Sammy comes across his father's murderer, but it is only after more fighting and some mysterious adventures that he captures the man. Of course, there is one girl in particular for Sammy and she manages to plague him greatly before he wins her.

- Fleischer, C: American aspirations. N. Y., Huebsch. c. 64 p. D. bds., 50 c. n.
In foreword, author says, "essence of prayer is aspiration." There is a type of prayer which "may not properly or technically be regarded as a vehicle of worship, but which, nevertheless, expresses that aspiration toward the Better which brings the inspiration of the Best." The "aspirations" here given, were originally spoken to epitomize the theme of a single meeting of the Sunday Commons, Boston, started because the author, the founder, felt that the Hebraic-Christian Cult, does not really express the modern and specifically American.

- Foster, Maximilian. Keeping up appearance; il. by Lester Ralph. N. Y., Appleton. c. 285 p. D. $1.25 n.
Vision of a $5,000-a-year job in a New York broker's office lures a young couple from their modest life in a small town. They plunge into a restless, flashy, pleasure-loving world, and in this hectic atmosphere promptly contract the habit of living far beyond the man's income and of keeping up appearances no matter at how great a cost. Blindly the young people follow this false doctrine and wade deeper and deeper into debt and despair. Driven by necessity, tempted by false hopes the hero speculates, loses heavily, and when discovered, is dismissed and is left stranded on the reefs of financial ruin. How this young couple meet disaster and extricate themselves from this slough of despond is one of the sane, hopeful lessons taught by this story.

Langdon Wallace introduces the Vincents, "Monty", his wife, and daughter "E." into Newport's most exclusive circles. An unfounded belief that Wallace intends to elope with his wife and difficulties in regard to money matters complicate the relations of the two men. E. and her mother eventually leave Newport and "Monty" in order to earn their own living. "Monty" makes a murderous attack upon Wallace and tries to rob his wife and daughter of the results of their business venture. A lover of E.'s girlhood turns up in time to save her from further misfortune.

Author, who is a member of the staff of the New York World, was one of the half dozen private secretaries who were constantly with Pulitzer, or J. P., as they called him. Book is an account of the everyday life of Mr. Pulitzer, the books and papers which were read to him, his wonderful fund of knowledge, the vigor and power of his mind which made The World the great paper it is, are all vividly brought before the reader.

Jennings, Al, i. e. Alphonso, and Irwin, Will, i. e. W. H. Beating back; il. by C. M. Russell. N. Y., Appleton. c. 3+351 p. pors. D. $1.50 n.

For several years Al Jennings headed one of the most desperate gangs of train robbers that ever infested the Southwest. After many exciting adventures, which he describes, he was finally captured and sentenced to life imprisonment. His picture of prison life is a revelation. After five years Jennings was pardoned by President McKinley. He went back to his native state, Oklahoma—and began his long struggle to live down the past. How well he has succeeded may be judged from the fact that he is being mentioned as a candidate for governor. He shows how circumstances made him a "bad man" and proves that men of his type can become useful and able citizens if given a chance.

Peter and Vivian met first on a little freight packet plying between Penzance and London. Peter wrote, but nobody bought what he wrote; Vivian painted and nobody bought her pictures. The packet was run into by a sailing vessel and a young woman threw her baby into Vivian's arms, so then she had "Littlejohn" as well as Peter to look after. They joined a traveling show for a while where they annexed the "changeling," a queer distorted girl, devoted to Vivian and Littlejohn. Leaving the show they go to some girl artists and manage to scrape together a living somehow. It is a record of a joyous, vagabondage which ends in Peter and Vivian marrying and settling down with their queerly acquired family at Secrecy Farm, the possession of which makes one of their adventures.

Keith, Marian. The end of the rainbow.

N. Y., Doran. c. '13. 352 p. D. $1.25 n.

Legend says that at the end of the rainbow is a crock of gold. Roderick McRae set out when only six to find it, he searched for many years and then found something better. Scenes are laid in Canadian village of Algonquin, where live Lawyer Ed, the eternally light-hearted, who helps everyone, Angus McRae, Roderick's father, who devotes his life to helping the poor and the sinning, Helen Murray the young school teacher who helps Angus and teaches Roderick what the true crock of gold is, and many other characters.

Key, Mrs. K. J. A daughter of love. N. Y., Duffield. 348 p. D. $1.25 n.

A daughter of unwedded parents rises to be the wife of a peer. She is also the mother of an illegitimate child and in the end is united with this daughter's father. Left alone and penniless, Mary is obliged to go out to service as general housemaid, and it is during this time that she meets the man who leads her astray. When cast out by her mistress she at last finds refuge with a French lady who makes a friend of her and her daughter is brought up under this influence. Later she again meets her old lover, but only after he has met and become devoted to his daughter to whom the truth is at last revealed.

In the suffragette cause, Lady Constance Lytton recognized her opportunity to test her theories of prisons. She joined their ranks, was sent to jail and finding that her rank protected her, immediately on her release returned disguised as Jane Warton. Author is a granddaughter of the novelist Lord Bulwer-Lytton. For thirty-nine years she led a quiet orderly life—often an invalid. Then she became a suffragette, experienced forcible feeding and all the attendant horrors and is now partly paralyzed in consequence.

Mrs. Royce, a devoted mother with great executive ability, manages her household and family so completely that unconsciously she keeps everyone at a nervous tension which reacts unfavorably upon their health. Thinking that her young daughter is overwrought, she consults a nerve specialist, who after carefully observing the girl and other members of the household, advises Mrs. Royce to go away and leave them alone for a while as she is really the cause of the overstrain noticeable in them all. Upon her return she finds them all very well and happy but glad to see her, and she realizes that "things," not ideas, have filled her life and occupied her mind.

Romantic story of a young man who, when his parents died, before he was twenty, entered a monastery, becoming Friar Anselm, a Franciscan, at Ypres. He is beginning to feel the call of youth and his native Sussex Downs when he learns that he is heir to his cousin's estates and money, which if he renounces will pass to another cousin. He is released from his vows, returns to the world as Paul Quillian, and learns the lesson "that the heart of a beautiful woman is the abiding place of at least seven devils."

Newton, Arth. Percival. The colonizing activities of the English Puritans; the last phase of the Elizabethan struggle with Spain; with an introd. by C: M. Andrews. New Haven, Ct., Yale Univ. c. 11+344 p. tabs. map. fold. map. O. (Yale historical pubs.) $2.50 n.

Tells of colonizing projects and activities of a group of English Puritans, led by the Earl of Warwick, John Pym, and others, during the years 1630 to 1641. Central theme is the founding of the colony of Providence in the Caribbean in 1630 and its maintenance until captured by Spain in 1641. Other topics of unusual historical importance are treated, such as the relations of the English Puritans with New England and the establishment of the settlement of Saybrook, the influence of the Providence Company as the nucleus of opposition to the personal government of Charles I, the part played by its members in resisting the imposition of ship-money, and the opportunity offered by its meetings of keeping alive the spirit of revolt which found expression in the Short and Long Parliaments. Setting is Rome in the days of the mad Emperor Caligula. Taurus Antinor, praefect and great soldier has riches and honors heaped upon him by Caesar, and when a conspiracy against the ruler becomes open and successful rebellion, he is the man chosen to succeed to the imperial throne. Taurus had seen and heard Jesus seven years before and had become a Christian. He refuses to accept the crown because of his oath of loyalty to Caligula, is the means of restoring the emperor to power, even though it means renouncing Dea Flavia Augusta, the woman he loves. Dea Flavia also becomes a Christian, follows her lover into exile and when she finds him, goes with him to teach their faith to the heathen.

Scene is laid in the little granite Isles of Chausey and in Paris during and after the Franco-Prussian War. Ronan Kerzec is in love with Aliette Kerello, but their father's are at feud. Just as Ronan starts off to his two years' naval service, Pierre Kerello is murdered. Then comes the war and Ronan through a series of mischances all engineered by his rival for Aliette's hand, is first thrust in the fighting at a barricade, then a Communist prisoner. His captures and escapes are thrilling and his final vindication also clears the mystery surrounding Kerello's death.

Palmer, F: The last shot. N. Y., Scribner. c. 10+517 p. D. $1.35 n.

War novel by writer, who as war correspondent has seen almost all the wars of the last twenty years. Leading character is a young woman living upon the frontier of one of the two contending nations, and each of her two lovers ranks high in one of the opposing armies. This situation results in a rapid story, abounding in "human interest." Novel has a large if secondary significance: its effect is that of presenting the drama of modern war as fought between two great nations, perfectly equipped and organized and shows that the alleged benefits, even to the victor are delusions, as Marta, the heroine believes.

Story of tow strong personalities clashing with each other in defense of their antagonistic ideals. The woman's soul has been suddenly awakened to altruistic activities. She becomes an active worker among the forces for social betterment. The man is an individualist. To him success means the overcoming of his weaker brethren—the expansion of his power at no matter what cost to others. For a while this parts them, but they come together again, each having conceded something through love of the other.

Based on the joint observations of Colonel Roosevelt and Edmund Heller, one of the naturalists who accompanied him on the Smithsonian African Expedition, of the game mammals of Africa. There are general introductory chapters on the country and its history; The derivation of the fauna; The flora of East and middle Africa; a discussion of concealing and revealing coloration; a brief account of game preserves. Then each animal is taken up separately, or in an appropriate group. Each chapter embodies a statement of the following: Names—English, scientific and native; Geographical range; History of species; Life history; Distinguishing characters of the species; Coloration; Measurements of specimens; and Localities from which specimens have been examined. Index.

Ruffin, Marg. Ellen Henry- [Mrs. Fs. Gildart Ruffin]. The shield of silence. N. Y., Benziger. c. 463 p. D. $1.35 n.

Story with part of the action in the United States and part in the north of Spain. Gives pictures of life among the Basques in the most picturesque part of Europe and an account of the political conditions in Spain. Some of the chapters deal with the Barcelona riot and the influences that lead up to the outbreak. Chief interest of the story lies in the fact that the knowledge of a crime had been intrusted to a priest, who of course is bound to secrecy. One lesson brought out is that every crime brings its own punishment and that no human justice can punish a criminal so effectively as his or her—the latter in this case—own conscience.

Story of the love-life of a charming and sensitive girl, impulsive, eager for joy, yet with deep-seated ideals not always in harmony with her impulses. The story of her development from childhood to her happy marriage is told with intimacy of understanding, humor and tenderness. Ellen Payne is so full of eager life that she frequently shocks the prim New England village of fifty years ago in which she lives. Then comes the charming city youth who wins her love, and through whom she learns what pain is. In the end she finds that Alec Yorke, her life-long friend, is the real meaning of her life.

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.
Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates

One page	$25 00
Half page	14 00
Quarter page	7 00
Eighth page	4 00
One-sixteenth page	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

HOW TO BECOME A CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES

$1.50

Being A Manual of Naturalization

$1.50

By JOSEPH G. GIAMBALVO, LL.B.

An Indispensable Manual to the Immigrant. A Necessary Guide to the Citizen

The text gives, in six brief chapters, the fundamental principles of the Government of the United States, from the discovery to the establishment of the Thirteen Colonies leading up to the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the Federal Constitution. It then follows with each of these topics under separate chapters, namely: Citizenship, Municipal Government, States and Territories, the Federal Government, and finally Naturalization.

A FEW OF THE COMMENTS RECEIVED

"It is much more than a manual of naturalization, as it gives a summary of our institutions and tends to inform the immigrant of the spirit and ideas of his adopted country. (Signed) HARRINGTON PUTNAM."

Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York—Appellate Division—Second Department.

"To the immigrant it is indispensable in its concise and pleasant form, its reliable American history and civil government—town, county, state and nation—all garbed in plain language and clear typography that is a pleasure to peruse. Every immigrant should own one. All through it carries the familiar charm of a friendly, patriotic and wise instructor.

(Signed) "WILLIAM HEMSTREET."

"I feel confident that it will be of great educational value to the men of foreign birth who permanently reside in this country and are awaiting the day when they can secure the rights of citizenship.

(Signed) "GARRET J. GARRETTSON."

Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

"It is a marvel of condensation, containing, as it does, in so small a compass a great mass of accurate information in a form which makes it equally available for use in any State of the Union. (Signed) HOWARD P. NASH,"

City Magistrate of the Second Division, New York City.

Adopted by the New York Public Library. Translations into Italian and Yiddish in preparation.

Published by The Citizenship Publishing Company, 26 Court Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in APRIL, 1914

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.
